

Effective Provision of Pre-School Education (EPPE) is the first major study in the United Kingdom to focus specifically on the effectiveness of early years education. The study is a large-scale, longitudinal study of children aged 3-5 years in England, Scotland, and Wales. It was funded by the Department for Education and the Scottish Government. The study is a large-scale, longitudinal study of children aged 3-5 years in England, Scotland, and Wales. It was funded by the Department for Education and the Scottish Government.